

May 12, 2016

helps maintain lower water temperatures (excluding authorized irrigation storage and delivery systems). Due to the absence of woody debris and in the interest of recruiting future woody debris and enhancing species composition and diversity in riparian areas, the following steps would help achieve these goals:

1. Maintain 60-foot protection buffers to ensure adequate shading and reduce risk of sedimentation.
2. Within 9

these best practices. It is not meant to imply a lapse of practice on the East side